

Jorge M. Fonseca currently serves as an Agro-Industry Officer with the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. In this capacity he provides expertise to member States in different areas related to food systems, focusing on systems management beyond farm gate.

He currently provides supervision of field projects in Latin America, Middle East and Sub-Saharan Africa. Prior to joining FAO he was an Associate Professor at The University of Arizona, where he led the state's postharvest and safety research and extension program. He also worked as consultant for the private sector in multiple countries. He has a PhD in Food Technology from Clemson University, USA.