

Sharla Halvorson

As Sustainability Manager for Nestlé Research, Sharla leads the integration of sustainability principles into product and process design. She works with cross functional teams around the world to ensure the development & implementation of sustainable and responsible innovation and strategies.

Originally from the US, she has worked extensively in Europe, Africa and the Middle East and has worked with a number of major corporations on sustainability & corporate social responsibility initiatives. She holds an MSc in Sustainable Development & MBA in International Strategy from HEC Paris, as well as a Certificate in Sustainable Business from Cambridge.