The 4th edition of the ISEKI_Food Conferences (<http://www.isekiconferences.com>), where up to 300 participants are expected, will take place at the University of Natural Life Sciences (BOKU).

Some of the invited speakers (in alphabetical order) have already confirmed: Hugo de Vries (Joint Research Centre IATE of INRA, CIRAD), Jan de Vries (nutrition solutions), Marc Dryer (Nestle), Martin Habesreiter (honey&bunny productions), Henry Jäger (BOKU), Francesco Marra (University of Salerno), Karl-Heinz Wagner (Austrian Nutrition Society), .....

Abstracts are welcome to the following topics:

- Education and Training in the Food sector: trends and developments
- Food Technology: process innovation, novel food functionalities and virtualization in food engineering
- Food Quality and Safety: new developments
- Food by-products: reduction and utilisation
- Nutrition: trends and impact of food technology
- Responsible Research and Innovation: challenges and practices in the food supply chain

Please note the deadline for abstract submission: 28 February 2016. Several sponsored awards for best contributions will be available.

Besides a book of abstracts with ISBN number, invited contributions can be published in Special Issues of peer reviewed journals, e.g. the “Journal of Food Engineering”, in a fast track.

A special session “Technologists meet Nutritionists” will be focusing on “Healthgrain”. Another session will deal with virtualization as tool for minimizing food and energy waste.

The Conference starts with several preconference workshops:

- A training workshop on “Food Waste Recovery” will present innovative technologies.
- In the ISEKI_Food PhD Workshop “Industry meets Academia” invited experts from research and industry will speak and PhD students could present their work related to a sustainable improvement of food quality and safety.
- In another PhD workshop on “Food & Water” PhD students could present their work related to topics on drinking water, utility and waste water in the food industry.
- The Food-Studies&Training Alliance project (<https://www.food-sta.eu/>) will present the “Food-STA center” to the Food industry, followed by a training workshop, organized by the FP7 project on traditional food (<http://www.trafoon.eu/>), aiming at fostering entrepreneurship dedicated to food researchers, which will present innovative tools and motivate potential entrepreneurs to innovate their business.
